304 (POLISH)
SQUADRON - RAF

He was half way to Romania when the Russians came and then he changed direction and headed for Wilno (now Vilnius). At one point the group he was travelling with were hiding in woodland but they were surrounded and captured by the Russians. All the men of military age were loaded into cattle cars on a train and were taken away but they had no idea where they were going. When they reached Bialystok, they had to change trains and he and one other bolted and jumped onto a train that was heading in the opposite direction. When the conductor came, Henryk gave him a few scraps of paper which he knowingly punched and moved on.

After the fall of France he escaped to England and joined the Polish forces at the Blackpool Depot, where he trained as a radio operator. On 20th August 1941 he was promoted to Flying Officer and posted to 304 Squadron. On 24th April 1942 he made his first combat mission to bomb the docks at Rostock. He flew 47 missions over Germany and Occupied Europe and was promoted to Flight Lieutenant.

According to the list of Tadeusz Krzystek, he was on board R1072 when it crashed on 11th July 1942 but he is not listed as being on that aircraft in other sources and is not mentioned on the Squadron ORB. For a long time that was a mystery but the answer was provided by his niece. He was a passenger on that aircraft and was just hitching a lift. Apparently a door had been left open and he sensed that something was wrong; it didn't feel or sound right so he jumped out before take-off.

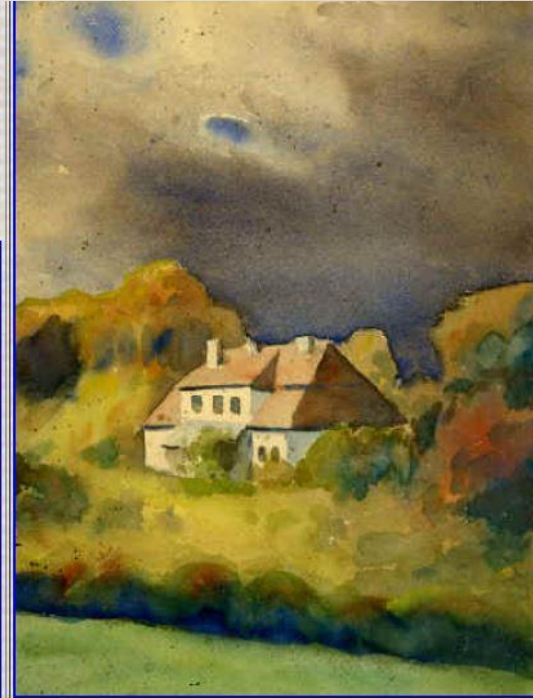

After leaving the plane he said it was taking too long to get up; the left wing dipped and hit a tree and there was an explosion and a fire. He assisted with the rescue and attended the funeral of one of the dead. He was not officially recorded as having been on board.

ZAGÓRZYCE

I think this is the front side of the house in Zagorzyce where Henry grew up.

This is a painting which hung in Henry's house in Rhode Island. It was painted overlooking Henry's godfather's house in Zagorzyce from Henry's favorite view-point. He told me it was a view from where he liked to go and just spend time.

Henry lived with his godfather and his godfather's housekeeper from after his mother died until his godfather became too ill

A close-up, horizontal view of a wooden floor made of light-colored planks with visible grain and knots. The planks are arranged in a parallel fashion, creating a strong sense of direction and texture. The lighting is even, highlighting the natural variations in the wood's color and grain.
